KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 25, 1916.

"I have no secret understandings, no unstated purpose. I am an American, free and clear of all foreign entanglements. We propose to have an administration, an American administration, which, while dealing with all nations on a basis of the most absolute fairness will maintain unshakably American rights on land and sea." In such vigorous fashion Mr. Hughes disposes of the charges of the Democratic National Committee and the New York World to the effect that the Republican presidential candidate had reached an understanding with groups of sympathizers with Germany represented by Jeremiah O'Leary and others. Mr. Hughes carried the battle to his triumph in his speech at Schouten Park Hall and in plain English stated his attitude rejecting the support of any who divide their allegiance. As a matter of fact, the campaign charges referred to have not been taken seriously. The attempt to make the "hyphen" a foundation plank for the Wilson 1916 platform died a-borning. The President has not gained the support of German-Americans active in behalf of the Fatherland and at the same time his course in the Lusitania case has alienated the sympathizers with the Allies as well as of Americans who insist that the rights of neutrals shall be respected. It is a question how extensive these groups of sympathizers with the European belligerents actually are in this country. There is no place here for war factions, although a small element can always kick up a lot of dust with the European war as a subject. Mr. Hughes's stand for an exclusively American policy in the service of American interests is the one note that rings true amid a jangle of racial discords produced by politicians in the role of volunteer organists.

With war conditions responsible for a tremendous lessening in imports for more than two years, the Democrats are possessed of the belief that the artificial protection thus afforded can be capitalized as an asset to their free trade propaganda. The President was laboring under this delusion when he professed friendship for the farmers in his unctuous utterances at Shadow Lawn. Any farmer who wants to learn the exact truth about the Democratic party's friendship will find it in the text of the Underwood tariff act. All the principal products of the farm, including cattle, swine, sheep, corn, rye, potatoes, eggs, fresh beef, bacon and hams, wool, wheat and wheat flour, are all to be found on the free list. On these commodities our farmers are brought into direct competition with the farmers of South and Central America and Canada for our home markets, admittedly the richest in the world. Before the war created its immense demand for foodstuffs, the plight of the farmer under the Underwood act was a sorry one, as is shown by a comparison of the last three months of 1913 and January, 1914, with the corresponding four months a year before when the Payne law was in effect. Corn from Argentina jumped from a quarter million bushels to more than 7,000,000 bushels when placed on the free list; oats from 23,000 to more than 16,000,000 bushels, while imports of butter increased in cash value from $122,000 to $1,531,000 and potatoes from $34,000 to $1,476,000. Figures cannot lie except where they are figures of speech such as are employed by Democrats to bolster up campaign assertions. The records quoted tell the story of the degree of Democratic devotion to the interests of the American farmer. But for the European war the farmers of this country, as well as all business men, would now feel the pinch of distress.

Henry Ford's assertion that "if we cannot compete on even terms with any country on earth, then we ought to quit" is pointed to by the Albany Journal as a strong argument for a protective tariff, and rightly so. The Ford phrase has been extensively quoted by Democratic campaign managers, but they have overlooked the importance of the words "on even terms" in relation to the sentence. They susceptible of adjustment save through a protective tariff. Under Democratic theories of free trade the output of foreign factories, produced at a much lower cost because of lower wage and living standards, comes into competition in times of peace with the articles produced by American labor. If there is a sentiment in favor of a lower level for American standards of living, the country has yet to hear of it. The restoration of a tariff to make up the difference between American and foreign costs of production is the only way to put American labor on even terms with the lower paid workers in foreign countries. Any other method to make conditions equal would be about as effectual as Mr. Ford's activities toward bringing about world peace.

Even the pressure of a presidential and gubernatorial campaign should not distract the attention of voters from the important judicial offices to be filled at the coming election, especially the high post of Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, for which Associate Judge Frank H. Hisecock of Onondaga county is the Republican candidate. Judge Hisecock has been on the bench of the State's highest court for ten years and his unusual experience with important cases passed upon within that period admirably equips him for the presiding judgeship. Able, independent, painstaking and upright, Judge Hisecock is correctly regarded as one of the strongest members of the Court of Appeals, and his election would be in the way of a deserved promotion and a public recognition of his sterling qualities. His opponent is Judge Albert F. Jenks, now presiding judge of the appellate division of the Supreme Court, second department, a good enough judge no doubt, but lacking the qualifications of Associate Judge Hisecock. It is a wise precedent that has governed the selection of a Chief Judge from among the associate members of the Court of Appeals. There is every reason for a continuance of that policy.

Explosion Develops a Sprinter. By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, Oct. 25.—The bomb explosion in the subway today developed running qualities in Otis Williams that may make him a champion. Williams was just entering the station at 110th street and Lenox avenue when the explosion occurred. He was thrown down the steps, picked up and started off at top speed. He ran all the way to the Lenox Hospital, a mile away.

"You never admit that you are sorry for anything you have said." "No," replied Senator Sorghum. "Being sorry for what you have said is a way of bringing what you said to the attention of people who might never have known you said it."—Washington Star.

Willis—"Do you think that moving pictures are the ultimate development of dramatic art?" Gillis—"No. There will be one more. On the legitimate stage you can get along with brains and no beauty; in the movies you can get along with beauty and no brains; and the next stage of development will be one where you can get by without either."—Life.

Right Away.

A hostess who was renowned for her stinginess loved to have people of culture at her table, but would not open her purse enough to make the table attractive.

Once, after a particularly poor and scanty dinner, she said to a distinguished guest: "And when will you dine with me again?"

With a hungry sigh the guest answered: "At once, madam!"—All Around Magazine.

Stung!

"Now," said the farmer to the new hand from the city, "I want you to clean up the pigsty, the stable, the henhouse, and all the other houses of the stock."

For two days the new hand worked vigorously; then he appeared before his employer with both eyes nearly closed, his mouth swollen, and red lumps over face, neck and hands.

"Gimme my money," he demanded; "I'm goin' to quit."

"What's the matter?" asked the farmer.

"I don't know what's the matter," returned the victim, "but it happened when I started to clean the beehive."—American Boy.

Wouldn't Eat Them.

A well-known Clyde shipbuilder tells the following story:

"Whenever I see a toothpick I think of a dinner that was given in Rome in honor of two Turkish noblemen. I sat near the corner of the room. He glittered with gold embroidery and great diamonds, but nevertheless I pitied him sincerely, for he was strange to our table manners and some of his errors were both ludicrous and painful."

"Toward the end of the dinner a servant brought to the young man a plate of toothpicks. He waved the plate away. 'No thank you,' he said. 'I have already eaten two of the awful things. I want no more.'"

Didn't Look Like a Madame.

Madame Bernhardt—the Divine Sarah—tells a story of a Canadian tour.

One night, while she and her company were playing "L'Aiglon" in Montreal, a very angry man left the auditorium and clamored at the box office for the return of his money.

The manager naturally wanted to know why.

"I paid to see Madame Bernhardt act," the man stormed, "and she's not acting."

"Madame Bernhardt is acting," replied the astonished manager.

"No, she is not," retorted the man. "She does not take the part of the empress, and the only other characters are a man and the slip of a boy who plays the young duke."

It took ever so long to convince him that the "slip of a boy" was Bernhardt herself!—All Around Magazine.

Good Roads increase the value of the 22,000,000 acres of Farm Land in New York State

That's one big reason why the work of your State Highway Department is so important, and why you should see to it that an efficient administration is kept in office.

For example, the value of farm land in New York State increased three hundred and eighty million dollars from 1900 to 1910 during the era of highway improvement under Republican administrations, as compared with a decrease of eighty million dollars for the ten years' preceding highway improvement.

Such an important department of your State Government must be efficiently conducted. It has been efficiently conducted during the past two years under the leadership of Governor Charles S. Whitman, in striking contrast to the conditions that were present during the three preceding administrations.

How this important department has "made good" is of immediate interest to every citizen who desires and supports GOOD GOVERNMENT.

Governor Whitman's appointee to the head of the department, acting with the administration made it possible for engineers and real road builders to get employment and promotion based on MERIT.

Expensive advisory boards and so-called experts were dispensed with.

Unnecessary and useless positions were abolished.

A plan of efficiency rating was adopted which forms the basis of advancement instead of personal influence.

Savings of more than two hundred thousand dollars were made in the first year by a more careful scrutiny of plans before final adoption and by adaptation of the type of construction best suited in each particular case.

During 1915 approximately 1,100 miles of first class roads were constructed as well as 1,070 miles of town macadam and gravel roads.

As a result of the careful study of the problem of maintenance and repair, the appropriation asked for maintenance during 1916 was $30,000.00 less than the appropriation for 1915, notwithstanding the fact that the additional mileage of roads to be maintained during 1916 exceeded those of 1915 by a total of between 700 and 800 miles.

Use your vote to support the administration that has brought back your State Government to a sane, businesslike basis.

DEEDS NOT WORDS MARK HIS RECORD

Deeds rather than mere words have made the record of Assemblyman Abram P. LeFever of New Paltz one of which not only Republicans but the voters of all shades of political opinion can look with the utmost pride and on which they can justly rely for future accomplishment.

Mr. LeFever has been of invaluable aid to his district and to the county of Ulster, and his work in the legislature has made him highly regarded by the legislative leaders throughout the state. How highly he is regarded is shown by the important constructive work of the Republican party which he conducted during the last session of the legislature and the important committee assignments which he received.

No man is better qualified from experience to understand and to look after the needs of his district and his county in the assembly. His entire life has been lived among the people whom he represents.

ABRAM P. LEFEVER.

He was born on a farm in the town of New Paltz in 1865. His father, Simon LeFever, and his grandfather, Abram P. LeFever, for whom he was named, were both prominent residents of the town working unceasingly for its welfare.

His education was received in the schools of New Paltz. After leaving school Mr. LeFever engaged in farming until 1892, when he entered the coal, lumber and feed business in the village of New Paltz and under his conservative and able management the business has been extended and a branch established which has since been conducted at Clintonville.

In 1898 the voters of the village elected him treasurer and he continued to hold that important position through re-election until 1908 when he was elected president of the village, continuing in that position until 1912.

The voters of the town of New Paltz elected him supervisor in 1909 and he was re-elected in 1911. His strict attention to the work of his office and his thorough understanding of conditions inspired confidence of the voters of the Second assembly district who selected him for assemblyman in 1913 and he has since served them most acceptably.

Assemblyman LeFever's best efforts during the last legislative session were in support of the appropriation bill for the addition to the New Paltz Normal School and he was successful. The Normal School is one of the best of the schools for teachers in New York state, and its enlargement not only aids every boy and girl in Ulster county who desires to take up teaching as a profession but it affords opportunity for supplying that training to scores of boys and girls from other sections of the state.

During his service in the assembly, Mr. LeFever has worked indefatigably in opposition to the New York city tax bill by which the city of New York sought to escape its just burden of taxation, and his work has been consistently in favor of all measures for the up-building of Ulster county and its industries and interests.

For a number of years Mr. LeFever has been a trustee of the New Paltz Savings Bank and a director of the Huguenot National Bank of New Paltz.

Wortman Estate Appraised.

County Treasurer Snyder, as appraiser under the taxable transfer act, has filed his report of appraisal of the estate of Max Wortman of this city. The estate consists of personal property amounting to $1,679.34; the debts, commissions, expenses of administration, etc., amount to $249.63, leaving a net estate of $1,429.71, on which the inheritance tax amounts to $4.38. George Wortman, the administrator, was represented by Everett Fowler; Joseph H. Vanderlyn appeared for the state comptroller.

Another Esopus Corporation.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, Oct. 23.—Articles of incorporation were filed with the secretary of state today by the Jacob J. Zagury Co. Inc. of Esopus, to do a general printing and engraving business. The capital stock of the concern is $10,000, and the directors are Jacob J. and Helen Zagury, New York, Leon Zagury, Elizabeth, N. J.

PRESENT ISSUE 20,000 SHARES

Tear off and mail the coupon below. Send for that prospectus that tells why the Universal Tire & Rubber Co. offers an unusual opportunity for profit.

It was organized to operate a chain of expertly, efficiently and modernly managed stores, to sell Tires and Automobile Accessories at retail.

It proposes to go into a business where the volume was over $650,000,000 in 1916, and destined to go over one billion dollars this coming year. Here is a business that goes hand in hand with the automobile industries, one of the three greatest, rivaling the great steel industry.

Yet here, in this vast uncultivated field there is no concentration of capital, effort, brains, organization, efficiency.

The Universal Tire & Rubber Co. proposes to apply these—combined with the successful chain store idea.

OPPORTUNITY FOR MOTORISTS

Every motorist ought to investigate this new company, organized under the laws of Delaware. Stockholders are to be, for the most part, motorists in the community where stores are located.

No bonuses, no extra stock to original purchasers, no stock jobbing, but a real bona fide proposition to make discount on purchases of stockholders, their friends and relatives, virtually pay for the small number of shares they buy.

It is not a perpetual discount on purchases, only with initial purchases of stock, and limited at that.

You ought to see the complete prospectus, whether you decide to invest or not. Tear off the coupon and mail it, or call at our local office.

STREET RIOT IN ATHENS.

QUELLING AN ATHENS MOB.

Athens, Greece, Oct. 25.—An anti-ally mob being quelled by the Athens police is shown in the picture. The first to be received in this country showing the disorder which has existed in the Grecian capital since the establishment of a provisional government at Salonica by Former Premier Venizelos. Since the photograph was taken the city has been parolled by French marines and the police force put under the command of Admiral du Fournet, commander of the French fleet, practically making the French naval officer a dictator.

IS THE ADAMSON LAW A GOLD BRICK?

The Adamson law is the so-called eight hour law which congress passed and on which President Wilson is seeking the votes of laboring men because he signed it. If there had been less time between the adjournment of congress and Election Day, the bill would have been accepted by the men for what it is claimed to be, a measure to favor the railroad men, but examination of the bill, and having time to think it over, is convincing more and more, the men who examine it that it is merely a "Gold Brick."

W. E. Smith, a railroad conductor of thirty-three years experience running out of the Pennsylvania Station, New York City, is convinced that the Adamson law is the biggest "Gold Brick" ever handed to the working men of the United States, and he is in town explaining to railroad men where they will get off under its provisions.

In the first place, the Adamson law affects only the men who are engaged in the actual operation of trains. This does not include the thousands of men who are at work in the yards, the yardmen, switchmen and drillers, as a train is not in actual operation, until it has been drawn up to the station platform with the engine attached, rear end markers in position, and the train crew in charge, and the train is in operation, until then. While landed by yardmen it is "a cut or carry" only. A freight train is in operation only after the crew to operate that train has taken charge of it, consequently the yardmen, switchmen, drillers, towermen, operators, nor any of the thousands of other employees are included in this Adamson law, as they are not engaged in the "operation of trains."

"If you don't believe me," said Mr. Smith today, "look through the law for yourself, and see where anyone else gets off." So much for Gold Brick No. 1. Now for Gold Brick No. 2 which was handed the men engaged "in the operation of trains."

The men now are paid according to the mileage they make, or on a speed basis for the longer runs, working agreements calling for 10 hours or less—100 miles or less in instances. On some of the longer runs it is twelve hours or less, and 136 miles the run to be figured on a speed basis of 20 miles per hour. (In freight service 10 miles per hour.) All miles in excess, and all time in excess of the speed basis is overtime.

The Adamson law calls for 8 hours for a day's work, not 8 hours or less, but a flat 8 hours; it makes no provisions for the number of miles a man must make—neither does it limit a man to 8 hours. The companies can work a man as many hours as they choose, so long as they pay him a "pro rata" rate for all hours in excess of the 8 called for by law. There is no provision made for the extra mileage the man may have to cover, be it 100 or more, only the hours count. In the case of short runs will a man having a run completed in less than 8 hours have the right to expect a day's pay? Or will the company see to it that no run, or job, makes less than 8 hours? They can fix the runs to suit their own interpretation of the law—and the men have no come-back—for it is the law.

"For years and years," said Mr. Smith, "we have been fighting for working schedules through collective bargaining and we were succeeding admirably, but last September we handed over to the president the right to make our working agreement for not less than six nor more than nine months, beginning January 1, 1917, and on that date all working agreements expire, and the Adamson law becomes the only working agreement in existence. To be sure the 10 hour rate is paid for the 8 hour basis day—but what becomes of the excess mileage the men make? And after the committee appointed by President Wilson makes its report, (and its investigations will drag out for not less than 30 days after the 9 months have expired), what do we get then? Look over the past and see what has been accomplished, and who helped us most in New York state. Since the constitution of the state was adopted at Kingston in 1772, 162 labor laws have been enacted and one-third of these were passed while Charles E. Hughes was governor. Mr. Hughes making a demand for a labor law in one of his messages to the legislature. The railroad men for years tried to get a law through providing that all railroad employees be paid twice a month but it was not until Hughes became governor that we secured the passage of such a law.

Compare the laws enacted under Hughes—laws that he insisted should be passed—compare such laws with the gold brick in the Adamson law and see where the railroad men get off, and then let me see the railroad man that thinks he should vote for Wilson because he gave us an 8 hour law, in name only. Does the Adamson law give us anything we can rely on? Does it give us anything at all? Can it give us anything? I don't see it, and I would like to see the railroad man who can give any reason for thinking so. I wish everyone of them in these United States would sit down with pencil and paper and figure out just how much he will be better off in dollars and cents under the Adamson law.

When we begin to figure in dollars and cents we begin to understand just how we have been gold bricked by the Adamson law, and it's dollars and cents that count now-a-days. I'm willing to show railroad men my figures and I'd like to see their figures.

Ancient Dolls.

Among ancient races the doll was taken very seriously and served a higher purpose than to amuse a child. That wax dolls were made and were used in magic rites 200 years ago and more before Christ we know, because Theocritus mentions them and because he uses a Thessalian word, dagys, to describe them, the inference is that they were known in Thessaly. But when they were first made of wax and when wax dolls were first used as playthings there is nothing to show.—London Chronicle.

Petrograd's Bridges.

The river Neva has a breadth of from 500 to 700 yards and forms one of the principal beauties of Petrograd. Its waters are clear as crystal and very deep. Every second it carries 1,750,000 cubic feet of pure water beneath the bridges, and its depth is so great that the largest ships can lie alongside its granite embankments. The pontoon bridges are removed in autumn and spring, as well as when the ice from Lake Ladoga comes down the Neva in the beginning of May.—London Chronicle.

The Road to Fame.

William Dean Howells was talking once about a writer who, after a good beginning, had degenerated into a producer of trash.

"I suppose," said Mr. Howells, "he got discouraged with the moderate sale of his good work and now hopes to sell his poor work abundantly."

Mr. Howells shook his head, smiled grimly and went on:

"The road to fame is crowded with men who, discouraged, are hurrying back."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

No Insects There.

The local bigwig's presence in the chair at an entertainment was desired, and two of the organizers waited upon him with a deferential request. The required promise was duly obtained.

"You may rely upon me," said the big man, "Friday, the 25th, in the parish room. It's quite an unsectarian affair, I suppose?"

"Bless your heart, sir," came the reply, "the place was only lime washed last week. You won't find nothing of the kind on the premises."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE CHEERFUL FACE.

Next to the sunlight of heaven is the cheerful face. One glance at this face lifts us out of the shadows into the beautiful, bright and warm within. A host of evil passions may lurk around the door, but they never enter and abide there. The cheerful face puts them to shame and flight.

MR. J. DIMITRI STEPHON, Representative

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Oct. 25.—Robert T. Frazier, who is leading the fight in the interest of the 1,200,000 railway employees who are not affected by the Adamson law, has brought out the fact that Representative Clark of Florida made a valiant attempt to induce congress to make the law apply to all railway employees. Mr. Clark offered the following amendment: Provided further, that this section shall also include and apply to station agents, train dispatchers, trackmen, office employees, workers in railway shops and all other employees of a railroad carrier engaged in interstate carriage of passengers and freight. Mr. Clark made an impassioned appeal for his amendment, he said that he was opposed to the legislation at that time, and added: "but if you intend to legislate, then, for God's sake, legislate fairly and give all these people the advantage of what you propose." The Democratic leaders consulted the body of the brotherhoods and found that they bitterly objected to having the legislation apply to all railway employees. The amendment was rejected by a vote of 81 to 120, the Republicans voting for it and the Democrats almost to a man voting against it. If the 8 hour day had the sanction of the judgment of congress, as President Wilson contended, there was no excuse whatever for refusing to make the law apply to all railway employees, but Mr. Wilson's attitude is such that only the brotherhood could deliver their vote solidly on Election Day and that therefore it was folly to try to do anything for the less well organized railway employees. As things have turned out, however, it is not improbable that the employees not included will have occasion to be grateful. Present prospects are that the brotherhoods will have to urge congress to repeal the Adamson law before the time for it to go into effect.

The German Vote.

Nothing better illustrates the desperation of the Democratic managers than their frantic efforts to make political capital out of the silly charge that Governor Hughes is catering to the German vote. It probably is true that the German-Americans prefer Hughes to Wilson. It certainly is true that the pro allies prefer Hughes to Wilson. The fact is that every foreign minister and ambassador would infinitely prefer to do business with a president who takes a position and stands by it, who says what he means and means what he says, who when he takes a position with regard to a republic in this hemisphere will maintain it and not wobble continually. So too, in the case of those whose sympathies are in some measure with foreign powers. All who take the slightest interest in the conduct of the foreign affairs of this country have seen Wilson's persistent wobbling and inexpressible disgust with Mr. Wilson. Out of the Democratic effort to show that Mr. Hughes has catered to the German vote has come conclusive evidence that the Democratic managers made the most frantic efforts to gain support for Mr. Wilson from the so-called German alliance so that the only subject like the Adamson law is merely destined to prove a boomerang.

Hughes and Labor.

Democratic efforts to injure Mr. Hughes in the eyes of labor have served only to strengthen the Republican candidate because they have brought out the fact that while Governor Hughes appointed the first commission ever created to study the problem of industrial accidents. This was the Wainwright Commission of which John Mitchell was a member. Governor Hughes, who had made the insurance companies chafe in house and do justice to the widows and orphans, realized that the unholy trinity of assumption of risk, contributory negligence and the fellow servant doctrine, was being effectively used to make it impossible for the dependents of those killed and injured to recover the damages to which they were entitled, and he saw that court delays and costs further contributed to defrauding those who needed and deserved damages. Hurly had he been elected governor, than he declared in a public speech: "The interests of labor are the interests of all the people and the protection of the wage-earner in the security of life and health by every practical means is one of the most sacred trusts of society. Fighting continuously and earnestly along these lines Mr. Hughes accomplished the enactment of fifty six labor laws, which the Legislative Labor News described as including among them the best labor laws ever enacted in this or any other state," and which led the same publication when Mr. Hughes responded to go upon the supreme bench to say of him: "He was the greatest friend of labor laws that ever occupied the governor's chair at Albany."

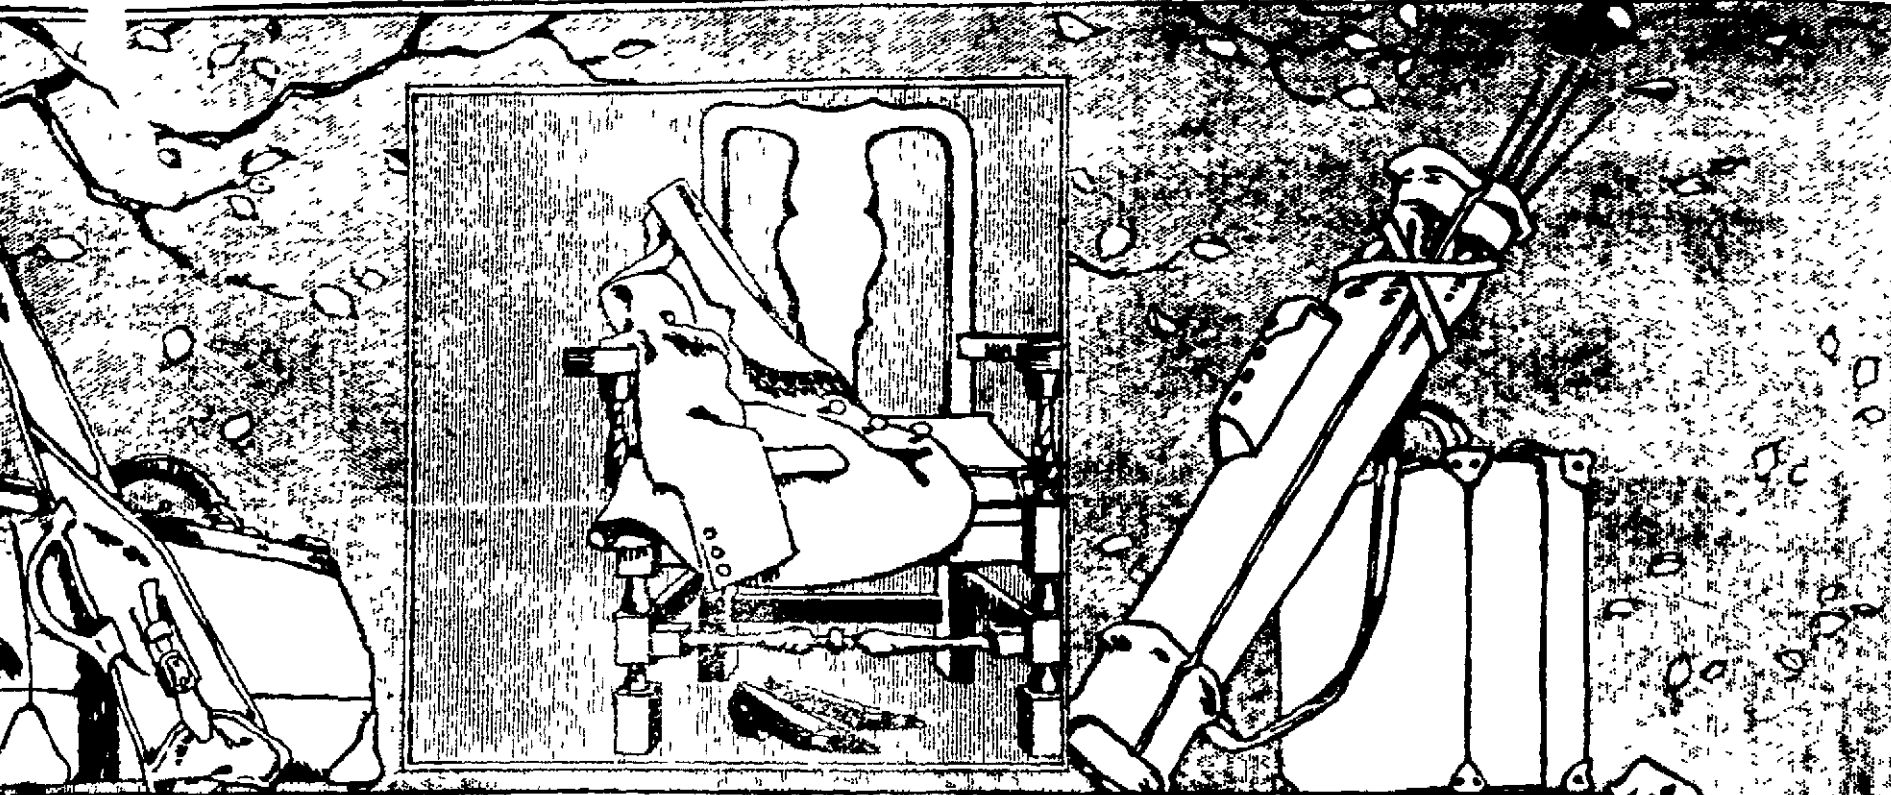

G. A. R. Protest.

Colonel McIlroy, one of the most widely known of the Grand Army of the Republic, has commanded of President Wilson, at his instance, the disavowal of the famous slander on the pages of the American Revolution. Colonel McIlroy says he has heard and is hearing from Grand Army camps in all parts of the country and that Grand Army men are deeply incensed and demand immediate action on the part of President Wilson. The view entertained by the Grand Army men is largely that expressed by Col. Roosevelt who says: "Mr. Baker has been engaged recently in a defence of Mr. Wilson. He attempts to defend Mr. Wilson's attitude toward Carranza and the Mexican bandits generally by advising that Washington and his soldiers stood on substantially the same level. He is by no means as astute as Mr. Wilson, but he is more sincere and straightforward. He certainly understands nothing of the conduct of war, and it is now apparent that he regards all wars as standing on the same level of infamy and all soldiers as equally respectable. Among his recent exploits was an elaborate comparison of Washington and his followers and soldiers in the Revolutionary War with Carranza and the other bandits who are now polluting the present nation's Sabbath in Mexico."

Wilson Won't Disavow.

President Wilson has intimated to the correspondents at Shadow Lawn that he will not disavow Secretary Baker's slander of the Revolutionary War. It is his present purpose to ignore all the intimation which Mr. Baker has aroused. Why he takes this stand he does not explain, but it is generally suspected that he is afraid Carranza would be named if he should say anything indicating that he regarded the Revolutionary heroes as more worthy of admiration and respect than the cutthroats until after Election day.

SIMMONS JUST WALKED AWAY

Wauna Sanitarium Patient Refused to Have an Anaesthetic Administered, so Wasn't Under the Influence of One.

According to the Wauna Sanitarium authorities Emory Simmons of Saugerties, who was reported to the police as having made an escape from the sanitarium under the influence of cocaine, was not under the influence of any drug and simply walked out of the sanitarium Monday. Mr. Simmons had called at the sanitarium with relatives, expecting to undergo an operation, but when it was time for the operation Mr. Simmons "got cold feet" and left the sanitarium before any anaesthetic of any kind had been administered. He left and went to a local hotel, where he spent the night, returning next day to Saugerties. As his relatives did not know where he had gone after he had left the sanitarium, the matter was taken up with the police. The Freeman obtained its information from the police who had received it by telephone from some person purporting to represent either The Wauna or Mr. Simmons's relatives.

Kicked Lunatic to Death?

Hugh Collins charged with assault in the second degree as the result of accusations made by fellow attendants at the Matteawan State Hospital that Collins had kicked William Bawkowski who later died, was held for the grand jury. His bail was fixed at $1,000, and on his furnishing the necessary bond he was released.

A Curious Accident.

Of all the curious accidents the strangest occurred in the Madras presidency, India, some years ago. A large party was out shooting and had mortally wounded a tigress. She was, however, still able to fight, and one of the hunters, having rashly ventured too near, was seized by the beast. His companions ran up and soon dispatched the tigress and released her victim. But just as he rose to his feet there was a loud report, and he fell again, with a bullet through his chest. In rising he had struck with his foot and discharged his own rifle, which lay on the ground. After long nursing he recovered from the wound, but it was a narrow escape.

Truly Said.

The husband who talks loudest for military preparedness frequently does the least towards household preparedness.

OUR DAILY PATTERN

1760.—Attractive Negligee.

This smart style is lovely for any of the pretty inexpensive crepes, lawns, organdies or voiles. It is also nice for silk, batiste and all lingerie fabrics. The fulness of waist and skirt is gathered at raised waistline. The sleeve is cut in one with the body of the waist in blue and white or lavender and white, with trimming of white or self color the design will be quite becoming. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes. Small, medium and large. It requires 6 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for a medium size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Catalogue Notice.

Send 10 cents in silver or stamps for our up-to-date 1916 large Fall and Winter Catalogue, containing over 400 designs of Ladies', Misses' and Children's Patterns, as well as the latest Embroidery Designs, also a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, giving valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Fixed, but a Fixture.

"Do you think you can fix this car?" inquired the luckless motorist.

"I think so," replied the village blacksmith, who was something of a wag.

As he moved around in the shade of the spreading chestnut tree. "When I get through with it it is not fixed in one way it will be in another."

And he was right.—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Running Sooner.

Mrs. Lafferty—Tin stitches, did the doctor have to take in me old man?

Mrs. O'Hara—Tin, was it, only tin? Sure, when the doctor seen the poor husband carried in the wheel on the railroad he sez, sez he, "Do there be no man here wid such a ting as a sewing machine?"—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Going Too Far.

"A man should try to have a good opinion of himself."

"Perhaps."

"I mean a certain amount of self respect."

"Oh, that's all right, but some people don't seem able to distinguish between self respect and self admiration."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Disgraceful Behavior.

A little girl who had been instructed not to talk in church because it was very rude was very thoughtful after the service, and when questioned she said in a horrified voice:

"Oh mamma, I think it was just awful for our minister to show off so rudely in church! He talked all the time."—New York Times.

VILLA'S BANDITS NEAR CHIHUAHUA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 25.—Villa's victorious bandits are equipped today five miles outside of Chihuahua
City proper, according to dispatches to General Funston's headquarters here.

In a dispatch to Funston, General
Pershing stated that "It is expected" that Villa will be in possession of the city within two days. His report was forwarded to Washington.

General Trevino, Constitutional commander, is short of ammunition.
It is said that Trevino has refused to supply him with ammunition.

Senora Carranza, wife of Mexico's first chief, who arrived here late last night, told the International News Service today that there is no political significance attached to her visit to the United States.

"I came to attend the wedding of my niece, do some shopping and attend the movies," she said. "I am returning to Mexico City immediately after the marriage."

Miss Gondaloupe Salinas, her niece is to be married at Nuevo
Laredo, on November 9.

The first chief still is in Mexico City, Mrs. Carranza said, and expects to stay there. Reports that he was preparing to abdicate she termed
"nonsense."

Despite this denial, however, Mrs.
Carranza's presence here started anew the reports that Carranza is preparing for flight. The reports were coupled with an unconfirmed story that Felix Diaz has occupied Tehuacan, capital of the state of Mexico, and is threatening to take the city.

Clinton Avenue Church Notes.

Re-opening services will be held on Sunday, November 19, and during the following week a program will be carried out. Meetings will be held every night during the week.

The improvements to the church have at Vulcan Pass on the northern boundary of Rumania. The Pass is now in the hands of the Austro-Germans. It gives the Teutons another gateway for the invasion of central Rumania from the north.

The building committee was surprised and delighted a few days ago when one of the prominent members of the church sent in a communication asking the committee not to make arrangements for procuring the ornamental lights for the front of the church as they would be presented by one of the interested members of the congregation.

The young people of the Sunday School will give an entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. hall on November 15, entitled, "The Miner's Daughter."
The play is being staged by T. H. E.
Richards.

The Study Club recently organized in the Sunday School now has a membership of 42 and under the leadership of Mrs. E. M. Kniskern will meet this evening at 8:15 o'clock following class meeting.

Postponed Once More.

The postponed annual meeting of the Old Guard, for the election of officers and transaction of other important business, has been postponed from tonight until Friday evening at eight o'clock when it will be held

GERMAN SUCCESS IN RUMANIA

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Berlin Via Sayville Wireless, Oct.
25.—Official announcement was made this afternoon of the capture of Cernavoda, in Dobruja, by the army under Field Marshal von Mackensen. The capture of this vitally important bridgehead position was preceded by violent fighting.

Several hours before the official announcement was made dispatches received here reported the fall of Cernavoda.

Another important victory has been gained by the Austro-German troops under General von Falken-hagen at Vulcan Pass on the northern boundary of Rumania. The Pass is now in the hands of the Austro-Germans. It gives the Teutons another gateway for the invasion of central
Rumania from the north.

OF COURSE THE NEWS IS IN THE FREEMAN

The following letter from the head of one of the largest wholesale firms in this vicinity shows the utility of a real newspaper with a real telegraph service:

Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 24, 1916.
Editor Kingston Freeman,
City.

Dear Sir:
I don't care to put a man on the back as he may become round-shouldered, but I think I voice the sentiments of the majority of the wholesale salesmen in this city when I say that you must tip your hat to The Freeman for its daily report of the wheat situation, as we have the market report fifteen hours ahead of the New York morning papers.
Respectfully yours,
ONE OF THEM.

which made boating unsafe.

IDEAL PARK.

Ideal Park, Oct. 25. Mrs. Har-bert Carl and daughter, Ruth, accompanied by a party of friends, motored to their camp on Saturday afternoon, returning to their home in Kingston Saturday evening.

E. E. Mathews spent Tuesday night at his bungalow here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Dederick and party of friends visited their camp for a few hours on Saturday afternoon and returned to their homes in Kingston in the evening.

George Quick, Sr. was a caller on Mrs. Elizabeth DeVall Tuesday afternoon.

There will be a Halloween social on Tuesday evening, October 31, at Mt. Tremper Hall. Games will be played and refreshments will be served. A good time is expected for all.

Mrs. Leroy DeVall entertained a party of friends from Saugerties on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Becker and son, Waldo, of Brooklyn, N. Y., returned to their home Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Mathews of Kingston entertained a party of friends at their camp on Sunday afternoon.

There will be an added attraction to our park next year, as a very fine tennis court is being made at the present time. Charlie Kelsey and Elmer Wilbur of Willow being the two workmen engaged at the work.

Has Moved to Town.

Daisy Williams of New Salem this morning moved from that place to this city and will make her home on lower Hasbrouck avenue. Some time ago she shot Floyd Hicks, with whom she lived, with a revolver.
Hicks was removed to the Kingston
City Hospital and has now recovered from his wound.

Wolsey's Rise.

Now that fast going is common it may be mentioned that the ability to establish a speed record was responsible for the first rise of Cardinal Wolsey from a humble position. It was when he was chaplain to Henry VIII, that he was sent into the low countries with a letter to the Emperor Maximilian. Leaving London by boat at 4 one afternoon, Wolsey took horse at Gravesend, reached Dover next morning, Calais three hours later and was with the emperor that night. An equally rapid return brought him back to the king in little more than two days and won him his first taste of royal favor.—London Spectator.

An Ideal Wife.

"There will be fewer divorcees," said
a society woman, "when men treat women as their equals."

"Do you know the kind of wife my ideal is?" a married man once said to me.

"Of course I do," said I. "Your ideal wife is the kind that's tickled to death over a birthday present of a bag of flour."

Let every man be occupied, and occupied in the employment of which his nature is capable, and die with the consciousness that he has done his best.—Sydney Smith.

Deserved.

"Blacksmiths seem to have a reputation for honesty." "Deservedly so. But due partly, perhaps, to the nature of the business. Nobody entrusts a blacksmith with trust funds. There is nothing to adulterate in his line. Compared with some of us, a blacksmith has few temptations to resist."—Kansas City Journal.

Her Good Reason.

Isabelle was fond of taking off her shoes and stockings and every chance she had she would do so. On one occasion she went down the street about half a block and took off her shoes and stockings. When she returned her mother asked her why she took them off and she answered, "Oh, I just wanted to wear my bare feet."

TOLD "HONEY BUNCH" OF BIG TOMATOES

Love Letters of Mr. Smith Were Nicely Divided Between Expressions of Affection And Description of Farm Productiveness.

The letters written by Mr. Smith to Mrs. Pohlman, who is suing Mr. Smith for $5,000, as a result of breach of promise, did not contain altogether endearing terms although they were greatly in evidence. In writing to "honey bunch" as Mr. Smith addressed Mrs. Pohlman, he spoke of tomatoes which he was raising in his garden at Mt. Marion which weighed two pounds and were as large as dinner plates. Other descriptions of fruits were excellent testimonials of the productiveness of the town of Saugerties soil. At the time of the writing of the letters, several of which were introduced in evidence, Mrs. Pohlman was residing in Brooklyn but later came up to the farm to join Mr. Smith who signed his letters as "Your Farmer Friend."

Mrs. Pohlman's first husband, an architect, became involved in financial difficulties in drawing checks on banks where he had no money, and left her in 1907. Later, through a newspaper, she discovered that he had been killed in an accident at St. Louis. Mrs. Pohlman has four children who live with her at Mt. Marion now.

After accepting Mr. Smith's invitation to come to the country and live with him, on a promise to marry her when she came, they had trouble and at times Mr. Smith locked food up in the cellar in order that she could not get at it, according to the testimony given by Mrs. Pohlman while on the stand.

More trouble was experienced when Smith did not marry Mrs. Pohlman and upon returning from New York in December Mr. Smith ordered the plaintiff from the house. She did not leave, however, until July of the present year, when trouble arose which resulted in Mr. Smith having the plaintiff arrested, charging her with keeping certain bank books and papers. The trouble was settled by the justice at Saugerties and Mrs. Pohlman gave back the books and papers.

However, a diamond stud owned by Mr. Smith found its way in some manner to the pawnbrokers and the proceeds were appropriated by Mrs. Pohlman. Since leaving Mr. Smith, Mrs. Pohlman has been living near the station.

Two daughters of Mrs. Pohlman were called to the witness stand and testified as to the visits of Mr. Smith to their home in Brooklyn and also as to the happenings since living at Mt. Marion. One girl testified as to the endearing terms used by Mr. Smith but added, "honeybunch" was his favorite.

At the conclusion of the daughter's testimony the plaintiff rested and court took a recess until 2 o'clock when the case was continued.

Cases 99, 101, 106 and 113 were taken to the day calendar.

"I do; also I'm strong for suffrage. Kiss your profile and think I can get along with your man."

But she didn't accept him, after all. A girl doesn't like to have all her questions anticipated.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Marigold Man

How He Was Saved by An "Impulse"

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Nan Harper was waiting for her train when the three men passed her and came to a pause near the gate where the western express would discharge its passengers. At first the men spoke in low tones, but as the conversation continued their tones grew a little louder until Nan could not help hearing what they said.

What they said was startling enough to her ears.

"You'll recognize him, Bill?"

"Never seen him in my life," was the sure answer.

"How about you, Jim?"

"Same here. I never saw him, but Durgee wrote that we'd know him by the yellow marigold in his buttonhole."

"Why would he be wearing that?"

"Oh, it's a sign, that's all! Durgee said he'd tag him so we couldn't miss him. Oh, we'll get him all right!"

"He'll wish he'd never testified against Tom Telford," growled one of the men.

Another laughed evilly. "Just how you going to do it?"

"Same old way," returned the other carelessly. "A crack in the right place will fix him."

"Sh-h!" warned the other. "The dame on your left is listening." They moved swiftly away to the other side of the gate, and Nan stood rigid, outwardly calm, but inwardly a quiver with fear for the man who would come walking through that gate with a marigold in his buttonhole, walking to certain death, for it was nothing less than death that these men were planning for the wearer of the yellow flower.

What could she do? Nothing.

Common sense told her that she would only get herself into trouble by interfering in this instance, but impulsive Nan was not on good terms with common sense, so her family said, and now, instead of forgetting all about the conversation she had overheard, Nan was planning how she could warn the marigold man of the danger that menaced him.

So when the gate slid back and the passengers began to pour out into the station, Nan forgot all about looking for Cousin Phoebe, whom she had come to meet, and her eyes went roving for a man with a yellow marigold in his buttonhole, a man who was near to death.

"If I could see Cousin Phoebe trotting along, peering nearsightedly about, and walking beside her was a tall young man in a gray suit. He was carrying Fido's basket for Cousin Phoebe.

Nan saw Phoebe and the strange young man as they came up the train shed toward the gate, and before they were framed in the opening she saw that the man wore a yellow marigold in his buttonhole.

In an instant she had slipped under the rope, darted past the gate and flung herself upon the astonished marigold man, tearing the offending blossom from his lapel.

"Nan," bleated Cousin Phoebe. "what are you doing?"

Nan, with the marigold crushed in her coat pocket, turned a rosy face up to the amazed youth.

"I beg your pardon," she stammered. "But I couldn't let you wear that."

By this time they were in the station, and Nan, glancing furtively about, saw the three conspirators still watching the doorway for the man with the marigold.

The stranger was putting Fido's basket into Cousin Phoebe's hands, and that lady was expressing her gratitude in no measured terms.

"I'm ready, Nan," she said.

"Yes, Cousin Phoebe," hesitated the girl. "I would like to speak to—to Mr. Brooks a moment."

He was looking down at her in a puzzled way. He was wondering what game this extremely pretty and evidently refined girl was playing. First she had snatched the flower from his buttonhole. Second, she had told him she couldn't let him wear it, and now she was calling him by a fictitious name. Did she really think he was some acquaintance, or was she just crazy?

"Don't think I am quite a lunatic," Nan said to him breathlessly. "but I heard three men plotting to kill a man who would come through the gate wearing a marigold in his lapel, a man who had something to do with a Mr. Telford—he started a little at that—and so, you see," she smiled uncertainly. "I had to find the man who was wearing a marigold and take it away with me. Wasn't it lucky you were with Cousin Phoebe?"

"Well, you are plucky," he said gratefully. "I am John Ransom. Please introduce me to Cousin Phoebe, and then we can talk comfortably, for I must thank you for what you have done."

So Nan introduced Cousin Phoebe to the delightful young man who had carried Fido, and somehow matters seemed more natural now that she knew his name and could place him as one of Nan's friends. "Still Nan must explain why she had flung herself at Mr. Ransom in that bold manner."

Cousin Phoebe permitted the young people to lead her to a taxicab, and after Mr. Ransom had put them inside she shook hands with him and told him to be sure to come and see her, and she gave him the Harpers' address.

"I suppose you know it already," added Cousin Phoebe, "as you and Nan are such old friends."

Nan blushed, and so did John Ransom, and then Nan grew pale, and Ransom turned quickly to see what had caused the sudden change of color. The three conspirators were coming toward them, arguing in low tones. "Are those the men?" asked Ransom quickly.

Nan nodded. "Be careful," she whispered, and then the car started and left him alone.

He stood there rolling a cigarette, his ears keen to catch a word from the three men.

"Durgee played a trick on us," muttered one.

"What did he say when you telephoned him just now?"

"Oh, nothing, except that Ransom was wearing a yellow marigold when he left Buffalo, and if we didn't know a marigold when we saw one we were just the bunch of blockheads he took us for."

"But Ransom might throw the flower away."

"Of course he might. I asked Durgee what he looked like. He said he was a tall chap in a gray suit, had light hair, smoked cigarettes and wore a topaz ring on his little finger."

They laughed scornfully. "As if we had time to stop and take inventory of every man who came through the gate!" scoffed one. "I told Durgee to tag him plainly."

"There wasn't any yellow marigold came through that gate," insisted another.

"Maybe he's coming on another train. There's another at 9:45 tonight."

"We better be on hand then—same place."

They scattered, and Ransom, who had stepped behind a pillar, evidently waiting for a taxi, smiled in a satisfied way as he went back into the station.

He stepped into a telephone booth and called a law office.

There was a brief dialogue in which Ransom told the state attorney what he had escaped and that the villains would be waiting for a man with a marigold in his buttonhole on the 9:45 train that night.

At 9:15 that night John Ransom mingled with the crowd that stood before the bulletin board in the Grand Central terminal. His keen eyes had singled out the three plotters, and he had pointed them out to a dozen quiet-looking men who were also scattered through the crowd.

The minutes dragged. An official chalked messages on the blackboard. The Boston express was twelve minutes late; the Western Limited was on time. At 9:40 he announced the train, and the crowd hurried to track 23 and waited outside the lines.

John Ransom was there, and so were the three plotters, their faces grim and resolute.

The gate opened, and the crowd of incoming passengers poured through. The three plotters jumped forward. A man with a yellow marigold had passed through. They were about to follow him when there came another man wearing a yellow flower and still another man wearing a marigold in his coat.

"Am I dippy?" demanded Jim hoarsely of his companions.

"Somebody is," growled Bill. "What's all these guys wearing yellow flowers for?"

"Beat it," whispered Dan. "Meet me at Leghorn's place. I'm going back to Buffalo tonight to fix Durgee. What's he making a fool out of us for with his yellow—What do you want?" he ended shrilly as a firm hand closed on his arm.

He looked up into the determined face of a man wearing a yellow marigold—a familiar face, the face of a Buffalo detective. And another one, wearing a marigold, was escorting Jim, and Bill also had a plain clothes man all to himself.

The plotters would have battled, only at the first sign of resistance there gathered a score of detectives, all wearing yellow flowers, and in the center of these three flower hunters were spirited away and later brought to justice for the crimes they had committed in Buffalo and which the company would have overlooked had not they conspired to add murder to their other sins.

A few days afterward John Ransom availed himself of Cousin Phoebe's invitation and went to the Harpers' house to inquire after Cousin Phoebe and Fido and incidentally, of course, Nan.

She seemed so glad to see him that he forgot all about Fido and Cousin Phoebe and thought of no one save Nan. He told her all about the plotting plotters and how they had been trapped by the cunning detectives who had all worn marigolds to puzzle the three, and how everything was coming out all right.

And he had to thank Nan all over again for saving his life, and he almost told her then and there that he wanted to offer that life to her gentle keeping, but he didn't, which was very well, because Nan was impulsive and might have sent him away forever.

But there came a day when he could and did tell it to her, and Nan had a flash of common sense and accepted him on the spot, which was the most sensible thing she ever did, according to her family. Although the said family thought Nan and John were lunatics because they wanted marigolds for a wedding decoration, the bride and groom didn't care. "I love lunatics," said John, gathering Nan into his arms. "So do I," smiled Nan.

HOW To Have Flowers Blooming Indoors All Winter Long

IF people living in cities knew how easily they might have flowers blooming all winter every home would be cheered by these loveliest of decorations. The requisite articles are one or more boxes, a sprayer, some good soil and the plants.

The box should be about eight inches deep by ten wide and of any required length. The material may be pottery, which is handsome, but somewhat expensive, or iron with false bottom for drainage. Wooden boxes are as good as any if painted inside and out with two coats of some neutral color. Place in the bottom of the box an inch or two of coarse stones, broken pottery, etc., to facilitate drainage.

A tin pan to set the box in will keep the brackets neat. It can be secured from a tinsmith.

The box can be mounted on brackets or on a portable stand; the latter is preferable because it permits the box to be moved easily from room to room for spraying and also to be turned with its best side outward.

The chief difficulty with house plants is lack of moisture. However, if the plants are well soaked once a week by placing the boxes on their sides in a bathtub of warm water for ten minutes the roots will have sufficient moisture, and by spraying the foliage well with water every other day and occasionally with kerosene emulsion the plants will be free from insects.

Obtain a good top soil from a florist. Make four inch pots from strong brown paper and put a plant in each pot, filling the pot with soil. Put two inches of soil in the bottom of the window box over the broken pottery, place the potted plants on this bed of earth and pack the space between the pots with soft soil and moss. This helps to retain the moisture and keeps the soil damp.

Satisfactory plants for winter blooming are cyclamens, geraniums, heliotropes, flowering maples, callas, tulips, primula malacoides, narcissi, etc.

Some good climbing plants are English and German ivy, clematis, Japanese hops, smilax and manettia vine.

When plants are wanted for winter blooming they must not be allowed to bloom through the summer; their buds during this season must be pinched off as fast as they appear.

A few plants drooping over the front improve the appearance of the box. Tradescantia, English ivy, sweet alysum and mahonia odorata are a few that are suitable for this purpose.

The only care plants need aside from spraying, which is very important, and soaking is a fairly even temperature, from 50 to 65 degrees in daytime and not less than 50 degrees at night. If weather is very cold cover them at night with a few newspapers. Admit air on mild days, but remove plants to some distant white windows and open.

PLANTING LILIES.

Why and How They Should Be Planted in the Fall.

Most lilies do best planted in the autumn. If left until spring the planting is very likely to be done too late in the season.

It pays to take pains in making a lily bed, and if best results are wanted for small beds remove eighteen inches of soil. Turn over the bottom of the bed with a garden fork and cover this soil with six inches of the good topsoil. On the topsoil spread two inches of dried sheep or stable manure sold by seedsmen. Turn this over with a garden fork so as to thoroughly incorporate the manure and layer of topsoil, leveling it with a rake. This done, cover the whole evenly with six inches of coarse sand. Place the lily bulbs on the sand, setting them a foot or more apart each way.

When the bulbs are all in position cover them to a depth of six inches with soil. Never use manure so it will come in contact with the bulbs.

How to Have Homemade Silver Clean—Without Elbow Grease.

To clean silver by the electrolytic method it is not necessary to buy any of the expensive pans and plates for sale. Any aluminum quart cup, saucepan or dishpan you may have will do as well. Add a teaspoonful of kitchen salt and one of bicarbonate of soda to a quart of water. Place silver in pan when water boils and be sure it touches the aluminum utensil and is not just held in the water.

An inexpensive silver powder is whitening. Ten cents' worth at any paint shop will last about a year. A teaspoonful of whitening dissolved in half a cupful of water, then rub on all silver to be cleaned. Begin again with the first place and rub off with a bit of flannel. In case of deep carrying rinse the article if necessary.

Why Pillows Should Not Be Too High.

"Of all the thousands of patients I have seen in bed I have never met with one who arranged his pillows hygienically," said an eminent doctor.

"All too high, far too high. High pillows curve the spine, bend the neck and thus prevent the free circulation of blood in the brain. You can never get the full value out of a night's sleep unless you fix your pillow so low that the head and neck are just on a level line with the spine."

How to Get a True Bias Without Too Much Fussing.

To obtain a true bias place the material flat on the cutting table and with a ruler or a yardstick laid across one corner draw a line with chalk or colored pencil. Use this line for a guide in cutting.

To Clean Silver.

Add one-half pound of sal soda to eight quarts of water. When the mixture is at a boiling heat dip the pieces of silver in, then wash immediately and wipe off with cotton flannel.

ALL FOOD PRICES ADVANCE RAPIDLY

Chicago, Oct. 25.—The turkey will not be the piece de resistance for the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners of many persons who are depending upon the middle west for their birds this year. Dealers here say a tremendous turkey shortage is in prospect and prices at holiday time will be in the neighborhood of 35 cents a pound. Last year the price was 28 cents and the year before 25 cents. Hogs are also in prospect and prices at holiday time will be in the neighborhood of 10 cents a pound. Last year the price was 8 cents and the year before 7 cents. The receipts of hogs at the stock yards are falling off steadily and lean, rangy animals form the bulk of the supply. Farmers cannot afford to fatten their hogs because of the high price of grain. The same applies to beefs.

Meanwhile Minneapolis millers announce a 20 per cent increase in prices of certain kinds of spring wheat flour, which they quote at $9.70 a barrel. Bakers already are predicting a 7 cent bread as the price of wheat continues to climb.

Wholesale grocers announce a rise in the price of canned goods. Cost of production has jumped 20 to 25 per cent within the last year, they explain.

MANY VIEWED OLD PICTURE OF VAMPS

The picture given to the old American Hose Company of Kingston No. 1, by Chapman Hose Company No. 4 of Newburgh years ago, and which is to be returned to the latter company on Thursday evening in an appropriate manner by the Hook and Ladder Company of this city, is an exhibition in the windows of Forsyth & Davis and has been viewed with interest by large crowds.

With the picture is the handsome framed and a handsome framed fire front of Chapman Hose, all of which have been in the possession of J. L. Nestell for 30 years past. The fire front was probably in existence many years before he received it, being the same style of front as was worn by the members of the company in 1847.

All of the above will be presented to the Newburgh Company on Thursday evening with the large picture and card. The three make a unique combination of value to the history of the city's organizations. In the window is one of the oldest pictures of the city, the Kingston men and their wives.

The old picture was restored and the story of Forsyth & Davis, the supervision of William J. Hornbeck will make a presentation to Chapman Hose Company of J. L. Nestell.

Textile Workers Strike Settled.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Utica, Oct. 25.—The big strike of textile workers at New York Mills was settled today. At a conference between representatives of the strikers, the Utica Trades Assembly and the owners of the New York Mills and Onondaga Bleachery the employers consented to grant the ten per cent increase in wages for which the operatives had been holding out. The settlement was announced, and work will be resumed fully in a few days.

PRIVATE YARDS TO BUILD WAR CRAFT

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, Oct. 25.—Following a preliminary examination of bids opened this afternoon by the navy department for construction of four dreadnaughts and twenty destroyers the department announced that all of the vessels would be constructed in private yards. It was indicated that every yard that submitted a bid within the appropriation limit of $10,000,000 would be given a contract for the construction of at least one vessel.

The department received bids from only three companies, causing a fear in official circles that the vast demand of foreign governments upon American ship yards will seriously handicap the efforts of the United States to build up a great navy in a limited number of months.

It is believed the government will be compelled to build a large number of the 175 vessels authorized in government yards.

BASEBALL POOL MANAGER IN JAIL

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Albany, Oct. 25.—James W. Wright of this city has been sentenced to jail for three months upon conviction in police court on the charge of conducting a baseball pool. Evidence was furnished by Joseph Vott and Frank A. Seaton, both of South Adams, Mass. The testimony was that for the week ending in the case the first prize in the pool amounted to $1,400 and second prize to $1,150. Seaton and Vott believed the latter had won a prize, but when they asked for it were told by Wright they said, that their money and combination had not been turned in.

Value of Education.

"Every day spent in school the children earn $0."

This statement was made by Wisconsin state superintendent, who bases his estimate on the official records of the bureau of education at Washington. Here is what he offers as proof of the statement:

"Uneducated laborers, earn on the average $400 a year for forty years, a total of $16,000."

"High school graduates earn on an average $1,000 a year for forty years, a total of $40,000."

"This education requires twelve years of school of 180 days each, a total of 2,160 days. If 2,160 days is a total of $20,000 to the income for life, then each day at school adds $9.26."

"Concentric as this summarization of earnings is, said the superintendent, it tells but one side of the story—the money side. Back of this can be seen improved standards of living, more intelligent and progressive communities, and a stronger national life."—Chicago Herald.

Icy Cold Winters.

In the winter of 1780 New York harbor was frozen over and teams passed from New York to Staten Island. New York bay was frozen over in the latter part of January, 1821, and sleighs passed over the Hudson river from Cortlandt street to Jersey City. On Feb. 3, 1844, Long Island sound was frozen over a few miles above New York. On Jan. 20, 1852, the East river was frozen over, and hundreds passed over both ways between Brooklyn and New York. On Feb. 10 and 11, 1856, the East river was frozen over so that the people passed over freely. On Jan. 23, 1867, the East river was bridged over with ice, and 5,000 persons passed over. On Feb. 12, 1875, the East river was completely bridged over for over three and one-half hours. During the blizzard of March 12, 1888, the East river was frozen over so completely for several hours that hundreds passed over both ways.—Magazine of American History.

ATHLETICS IN FAVOR Not Harmful to Young Men Is Opinion of Many Experts.

Authorities Practically Unanimous in Asserting Question Is to Be Answered in Negative If Properly Safeguarded.

"Are track athletics harmful to young men?" is a query that has been answered by such notables as Dr. John W. Bowler, professor and director of the gymnasium at Dartmouth college; Dr. George L. Mendenhall, professor of physical education at Columbia university; Dr. D. A. Sargent, president of the Sargent School for Physical Education; Dr. Albert H. Sharpe, athletic coach at Cornell; Dr. C. Ward Crampton, director of physical training in the New York city schools; Dr. William G. Anderson, director of Yale university, and others.

These authorities are practically unanimous in asserting that the question is to be answered in the negative, if athletics are carried on with proper safeguards. Doctor Anderson of Yale has prepared a table of statistics on the lives of Yale athletes covering a period of 50 years, which shows that the Yale athlete does not die young, nor is heart disease the leading cause of the greatest number of deaths, and that the percentage is not higher than that expected among non-athletes from similar causes, and that a comparison based on the statistics of insurance companies is favorable to the athlete. Doctor Anderson says, however, that although the average athlete is not short lived, there is no adequate proof that he owes his longevity to athletics.

Sharpe's Opinion.
Doctor Sharpe, better known as Al Sharpe, the famous football coach who brought about such an improvement

Dr. Al Sharpe.

In the Cornell eleven last season, is emphatically outspoken in favor of track athletics. He not only says they are not harmful but he asserts that they are decidedly beneficial. He gives several instances of the favorable results in serious sickness of a strong heart action developed by members of the Cornell track team, under the care of John Mackley, a veteran trainer and skilled handler of athletes.

The only national claim that can be advanced against collegiate athletics, according to Doctor Sharpe, is that the environment of a college athlete, after his graduation, does not generally afford him an opportunity to carry on his usual physical activities and no other form is substituted.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton says that athletes are led to a manner that satisfies the competitive spirit of the participants and their competent supervision are distinctly beneficial in serving the ends of physical education.

Little Danger.

Doctor Lambert of the University of Virginia says there is no little danger in modern athletics, conducted under proper supervision, as there is in going to church or digging potatoes.

On the contrary, he thinks that feeble-minded boys often build up their constitutions through athletics.

Individual excess is the main objection to be considered against track athletics, according to Doctor Sargent of the Sargent school. This excess occurs in two ways—from over-exertion on the part of an athlete judged fit to take part in competitive tests of skill, strength and endurance, and from participation in such events by youths not able to stand the strain incidental to competition and rivalry.

When an intelligent administrative supervision is put in force the danger from competitive athletics is reduced to a minimum.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Arrangements are being made for a private masquerade party to be held by the Children of Mary of St. Mary's Church, at the school hall on Friday evening. The social is for the members only and an enjoyable evening is assured all who attend. Refreshments will be served and the usual admission fee will be charged.

There was a large attendance at the dance at St. Mary's Hall last evening, given by the Loyal Friends' Aid Society. All enjoyed immensely owing to the fine music furnished by the orchestra. A large sum will be netted to swell the charity fund, for which the society thanks each and everyone who helped to make this such a social and financial success.

Mr. and Mrs. George Wosener celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary at their home on Cedar street on Saturday evening last. Some fifty guests being present, and spending the evening pleasantly in playing cards and listening to numerous fine Victrola selections. The new year of married life was well begun before the guests departed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wosener their gracious host and hostess many, many years of happiness together.

Date of Day Nursery Dance.

The Freeman has been asked to correct the date of the dance to be given by the members of the Monday Afternoon Sewing Club, for the benefit of the Day Nursery. The dance will take place at St. Mary's Hall on the evening of Friday, December 1st, the night after Thanksgiving which will, this year, occur on November 30th.

Myers-Rowley.

Annie Myers of Cedarcliff and Miss Margaret Rowley, of Marlborough, were quietly married Saturday evening, October 21, at the parsonage of the Church of the Comforter by the Rev. Wilbur F. Stone. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Harriet Rappleyea, a sister of the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Myers will reside at Cedarcliff.

Halloween Supper and Entertainment.

Tuesday, October 31, and Wednesday, November 1, are the dates set for the annual fair and supper of the Wurts Street Baptist Church. On Tuesday evening from 5 to 8 o'clock a pie supper will be served, and on Wednesday evening an interesting Halloween entertainment entitled "In Witchcraft Days" will be given by the young people. The spirit of Halloween with its black cats, owls, witches, pumpkins, etc., will be carried out in the decorations. Dainty fancy and domestic articles, home made candies, etc., will be for sale.

Lowell Club.

On Tuesday afternoon the Lowell Club had a very successful meeting at the home of Miss D. G. Atkins at 100 Main street. The program was opened with a roll call of "Folk Legends and Superstitions." This was followed by an interesting sketch, introduction of Christian, given by Mrs. Deyo. Mrs. Fowler had the paper for the day "Invasion of the Northmen: Maid of Norway," which was so well presented as to hold the closest attention of all. Then followed the reading of "Chevy Chase," by Mrs. Everett, with a second reading, "Tennyson's Battle of Brunnenburgh," given by Mrs. Atkins. The music for the day consisted of a number of Scotch songs charmingly sung by Miss Helen Atkins, accompanied by the piano by Miss William H. Rieger. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Pessenden.

Annual Red Cross Meeting.

The annual Red Cross meeting for the Winter County Chapter, will be held on Wednesday evening of next week, November 1st, at the Y. M. C. A. at eight o'clock. Promptly in addition to the election of officers, there will be given a brief summary of the year's work by the local chapter of the national organization, which will include a report from the Civilian and Military Relief Committees. Furthermore there will be plans formulated for making this organization much more efficient and serviceable in the future. Never in the history of our country has there been such need that the American Red Cross be prepared for whatever the future conditions of our country may demand. It is therefore, urgent that every member, and every one interested in the National Red Cross attend this meeting.

BUTLER OUSTED
FROM SALOON

This morning the complaint lodged against Henry Butler, the Canal street saloon keeper, of maintaining a disorderly house, was withdrawn when he was arraigned before Recorder Lang and Butler was discharged and the bail bond of $500 which he had furnished guaranteeing his appearance in court was cancelled.

Butler is no longer in the saloon business as the owner of the building on Canal street ousted Butler on Tuesday, and another man is now conducting the business. Butler moved his belongings from the saloon on Tuesday afternoon.

MENKE'S DAILY
SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G. Menke).

New York, Oct. 25.—The vagaries of football are exemplified in the case of Bob Folwell.

Bob coached the Washington and Jefferson eleven for a number of years. He had to recruit his eleven from a student enrollment of less than 500. Yet for three seasons he gathered teams that were the sensations of the football world. In 1913 the W. & J. crew rolled up something like 347 points and held the powerful Yale team to a scoreless tie. In 1914 the Folwell tutored crowd walloped Yale, came within a point of defeating Harvard and steamrolled all its other foes. His 1915 eleven also beat Yale and crashed the majority of the other teams against which it was pitted.

It used to be said in those days: "If Folwell ever gets a job as coach of a team from a big university he would assemble a machine that would be the sensation of the football world."

Well, Folwell has his chance this year—the very chance he has yearned for so long—and success has not come to him. He is at the helm of the University of Pennsylvania skiff, and already it has gone to the rocks of defeat. Folwell, in recruiting his 1916 Pennsy team, has had almost ten times as much material to draw from as he had in the W. & J. days, yet his outfit doesn't size up in any way as powerful as were the 1913, 1914 and 1915 machines that he welded.

How shall one account for it? Certainly nothing is wrong with Folwell. He is just as good a coach today as he ever was—and he has ranked as one of the wonders of the gridiron. The material he has in Pennsy looks—on paper—to be twice as good as ever was placed before him in W. & J. But the Pennsy team that Folwell has placed together hasn't displayed anything that merits it one fourth the consideration and acclaim of those great W. & J. elevens.

It is said the men of Pennsy lack the sublime courage and splendid fighting spirit of the boys of Washington & Jefferson who have made its teams among the most feared in America?

Ancient Yale.

Sometimes it's the men who make the football teams great; on other occasions it's the coaches. Yale is an illustration.

Frank Hinkley, one of the greatest stars that ever scintillated in the gridiron sky, had charge of Yale's football destiny a year ago. He had material—plenty of it. He had some men who looked like phenoms early in the season. But he couldn't produce a winner. Instead, he recruited the worst football team that ever fought under the blue standard.

The fault wasn't Hinkley's, as regards lack of judgment. He knows a footballer when he sees one, and, left alone, he might have put together a real team. But he was hampered by fraternity politics; he permitted a boy to dominate him; to tell him what he should and shouldn't do. There was Hinkley's grave error. He should have risen up and commanded football affairs at Yale. But he didn't—and Yale of 1915 was wrecked on the siding of defeat.

Now comes Tad Jones. He's a football student but it is doubtful if he knows more about the technique of the game than Hinkley. But Jones has a different personality; one that inspires, even while it rules Jones is the boss at Yale, and although the material of 1916 doesn't look to be much superior to that which Hinkley had in hand last year, the results are vastly different. Yale has "come-back" and with a hurrah that is ringing through the land; with a rush that promises to see it again to the heights of the football world.

Jones is a leader of men; one who can influence his following to work and to fight beyond themselves; one who can get the maximum from every subordinate. Hinkley was not a born leader. And so he failed, where Jones has made good, thus showing that in Yale's case, at least, it's the coach that made the team.

Carlisle, on the other hand, would indicate that it is the men who make—or unmake—an eleven in greatness. For many years Glen Warner was coach there. And the Indian teams that he tutored ranked among the most feared in the entire country. They were wonderful elevens; fast, powerful, aggressive and consistent winners.

In time, the doers came to believe that no matter what sort of material was sorted up to Warner he would mix it into a prize winner. But 1911 shattered that opinion. The Warner-coached Indians of two seasons ago were awful—and a bit more. Carlisle became the football that nearly every one of its foes kicked. Warner did everything in his power to make it into a great team—but it was a joke.

So, in Carlisle, is found the argument for that faction which insists that the men make a team great—that the coaches, after all, are of only of secondary importance.

Senate House Improvement.

A dozen Lombardy poplar trees have been set out along one side of the Senate House yard where they make an effective background and serve to screen unsightly fences and back lots. The trees were placed through the instrumentality of the Garden Club. Another addition to the yard is an old-fashioned foot scraper set into a flagstone at the doorstep, these being the gifts of Mrs. Philip Elting.

Coroner Kelly's Career as Public Official Has Gained Legions of Friends for Republican Candidate.

Ernest A. Kelly, the Republican candidate for coroner, is well located for the prompt performance of the duties of that important office, being a resident of the central part of this city. Although 35 years of age, Mr. Kelly, never aspired to public office until he was nominated three years ago for coroner, but nevertheless he was elected by the largest majority given any candidate that year. He has always taken an active interest in all matters of good government both in the city and at his former home in the town of Esopus.

Born and educated in our neighboring city of Poughkeepsie, Mr. Kelly completed his high school studies there and afterward worked with his father at the carpenter's trade for three years, entering the undertaking business at Newark, N. J., at the age of 19 years. Two years later he graduated with honor from an embalming school, and having passed the state embalmer's examination, came into New York state, working for various undertaking establishments in Middletown, Poughkeepsie, New York and Brooklyn and finally began business for himself at Port Ewen.

Five years later he associated himself with the late H. S. Terwilliger at Rondout and after Mr. Terwilliger's death became the manager and funeral director for the Terwilliger establishment at 48 West Union street, where he is still located, his residence being at No. 111 West Chester street. Mr. Kelly owes his present high standing in his profession to his large experience, conscientious work and his genial and friendly personality, combined with honest efforts and good habits.

In 1907, Mr. Kelly married Miss Rhoda I. Gonsalus, daughter of John Gonsalus of Clintondale, Ulster county, and is something of a "joiner" being a member of Davy Crockett H. & L. Co., of Poughkeepsie, Port Ewen H. & L. Co., of Port Ewen, Rondout Lodge, No. 343 F. & A. M., Hope Lodge, No. 65 Knights of Pythias, Kingston Lodge, No. 970 Loyal Order of Moose and the Ulster County Republican Club.

The voters of Ulster county will do well, if they desire the office of coroner to be filled by a clean, competent and progressive young man and one who knows from his own experience in making his unaided way in the world what it means to "count the cost," to cast their votes for Ernest A. Kelly for coroner.

BATTILING LEVINSKY.
LEVINSKY TO TRY FOR WILLARD.

New York, Oct. 25.—A match with Jess Willard is confidently looked forward to by "Battling" Levinsky, following his coming match with Jack Dillon in this city. "Tex" Rickard will attend the Levinsky-Dillon bout for the purpose of signing the winner for a ten round battle with Willard in New York on Thanksgiving Day.

HIGH SCHOOL
BASKET BALL

Tuesday afternoon at the close of school there was a meeting called for the candidates who wished to try out for basket ball this season. It is expected that practice will begin Monday and from then on there will begin the weeding out of the less useable material.

At the meeting there were about thirty or forty men who were probably candidates for the varsity team and a like number who were looking for a berth on the midget squad.

The strict rules that the board of education adopted April 28th of this year will guard against a likely lowering of scholarship records because of taking part in athletics and a perceptible rise in the athletes' averages is often noticed during the teams' seasons of activity.

These rules apply to all athletics in the school and are as follows:

No student shall be eligible for membership in an athletic team of Kingston High School if such student is:

(a) More than twenty years of age.

(b) More than nineteen years of age and has been in attendance at the Kingston High School more than four years.

(c) A post-graduate.

Scholarship Qualifications.

In order to be eligible for an athletic team of the Kingston High School a student shall have fulfilled the following conditions:

(a) Such a student shall be pursuing in regular class at least eighteen subject-hours per week and shall maintain an average of at least 75 per cent in fifteen subject-hours per week, except as provided below. A weekly report shall be made by teachers to determine student's eligibility for athletic teams; if a student is ineligible as a result of such a report, the student shall be ineligible for one week and may be allowed to contest at the end of such time if the work in all classes is satisfactory. A student demoted in a given subject shall be considered as doing unsatisfactory work in such subject.

Clothing, equipment and athletic materials purchased with the money of the High School Athletic Association shall remain the property of such association, subject to the jurisdiction of the board of education. No student shall loan to any other person not a regular member of the athletic team any property of the Athletic Association, nor shall any member of the athletic team wear athletic outfits in any game other than Kingston High School games.

During all practice, in games, and on trips outside of Kingston all players of the athletic team shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the faculty members in charge of such practices, game or trip.

PINE HILL.

Pine Hill, Oct. 25.—Dr. and Mrs. N. B. Reulick have been spending the past week with relatives in Massachusetts, have returned to their home in this village.

Roland Persons of Pine Hill was recently married in Brooklyn to Miss Lillian M. Cockrel of Brooklyn and are spending their honeymoon in this village.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Carter have returned from Ontario, where they had been called by the illness of Mr. Carter's mother.

A. D. Hill and his two daughters, the Misses Addie and Pauline Hill, and their aunt, Miss Mildred Hill, made a trip to Kingston in Mrs. Hill's auto on Friday.

Casper Smith is quite ill at his home on Maple avenue.

Morton Bertrand is visiting his mother, Mrs. E. J. Bertrand. Mr. Bertrand has been in the middle west for some months representing his firm. He expects to leave shortly for a trip to California, before election. We are sorry to lose that Republican vote.

It is rumored that Josiah Trowbridge has rented one of the cottages on Maple avenue of A. Mayes of this village.

Mrs. H. Honsenman closed the Minisink on Academy street of this village last week and returned to her home in New York.

Platinum.

Platinum, with the exception of iridium, is the heaviest of all the metals. The name originated with the Spaniards on account of its silvery color, plus signifying silver. It was unknown in Europe until about 1741, when its existence was announced to the world by a Spanish scientist after a trip to South America.

Boiling Cracked Eggs.

Cracked eggs can be boiled safely by placing a little water in the water.

It's certainly that, boy, it's certainly that—What Sherman said about war fits in just right with the way one guy felt when he got home and all unpeeled for the night and found he had forgotten to lay in a pack of MECCA.
